FTC Act § 5

"Unfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in or affecting commerce, are hereby declared unlawful."

FTC Act § 5

"Unfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in or affecting commerce, are hereby declared unlawful."

Everything that violates § 2 for monopolization will also violate FTC Act § 5.

But § 5 is broader, reaching unilateral anticompetitive conduct where there's market power even if there's not monopoly power.

Yet, as we know, only the FTC can enforce FTC Act § 5. Also, the remedies are limited to prospective relief.

We'll be concentrating on just the monopolization claim for a while. After we've gone through it thoroughly, we'll come back for a relatively quick look at attempted monopolization.

- (1) monopoly power in a relevant market
- (2) anticompetitive conduct

Mode of analysis

Monopolization claims proceed under a rule-of-reason sort of analysis, but courts tend not to use the label "rule of reason" for § 2 claims like they do for § 1 claims.

"The offense of monopoly under § 2 of the Sherman Act has two elements: (1) the possession of monopoly power in the relevant market and (2) the willful acquisition or maintenance of that power as distinguished from growth or development as a consequence of a superior product, business acumen, or historic accident."

United States v. Grinnell Corp., 384 U.S. 563, 570-71 (1966)

"predatory conduct," "exclusionary conduct" (some sources may draw distinctions among various terms, but they are often used interchangeably)
